"Balance can apply to many things. There is physical balance which is important in martial arts. There is visual balance which is essential to the structure and layout of a painting. But perhaps the most important form of balance is a balance in life. Family, health, love, career, finances... finding a balance in things that are important in your life is truly a special gift. Like the leaves in rustling in a bamboo forest, stop and listen to what life is whispering to you. The really important things are often whispered to you every day...we just have to learn to listen."
